His Father in Mexico, Missouri.

Now Confined at the County Jail-A Requisition Granted-How He Was Traced Here -Story of the Shocking Crime.

George W. Adams, sheriff of Audrian county, Missouri, was in the city yester-Our Millinery Department day with a requisition upon Governor Chase for a prisoner at the work-house named Harry Brown, alias Jethro Martin. A warrant was issued authorizing the transportation of Martin out of the State. He is under indictment for the murder of his father, Rev. Thomas Martin, Jan. 26, with a blunt instrument. Brown, alias Martin, was arrested Feb. 4 by detectives Kinney and Page on a charge of vagrancy. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $100, and was sent to the work-house in default of payment. About a month ago he made a break for liberty one evening as the prisoners were being taken in line to supper. He dashed through a glass window, and but for the agility and perseverance of Superintendent Anderson he would have escaped. His conduct at this time led to the suspicion that he is a man of bad character and of a bad record.

> it became necessary to remove the prisoners from the work-house to the jail, and Martin has since been confined in the latter place. He was seen there last night by a Journal reporter. In appearance he resembles the species tramp. His hair is a dark red, and his head and face are small and laterally pinched. His forehead is low and retresting. Altogether, his countenance is forbidding, with a hangdog look. In reply to pointed questions he told the following story, in substance: "I don't know anything about the death of my father except what my cousin told me when he was here, a week ago. I left my father at our house in Martinsourg. twelve miles from Mexico, Mo., Jan. 26 [the date of the murder], in the evening. He gave me his watch and we traded overcoats, and we parted without words. I suppose I am accused because he was killed so soon after I left the house. His wife

"Good as need be for a step-mother," was

"Where did you go after leaving home?"
"I went on the Wabash road to St. Louis and then to Cincinnati. I lost my money in a hotel in Cincinnati. Some one stole it from under my pillow. I came here and one night was begging for some money for a night's lodging, when I was arrested. I had my father's watch, but I did not want to put that up for security. I expected to get a job at braking the next day, and was intending to make my way to Green county. Pennsylvania, where my sister lives. What made me change my name? Well, I was traveling around, and I thought I might as well go by another name. I am thirty-one years of age, and have generally Worked on a farm."

When asked if he was married Martin made no intelligible reply. He will be taken before Judge Cox this morning to be identified as the man wanted. The clew which led to the present legal process was a letter, written while in jail, to his sister in Pennsylvania. She informed the Audrian county authorities, and the cousin, James J. Martin, came on to identify him. It is supposed that Martin quarreled with his father about his wife, who is only twenty-three years of age. She had mar-ried her husband in St. Louis. He was a minister in the Baptist Church, and was sixty-three years of age. The assault was committed with a stick of stovewood, which cut the scalp to the bone and crushed the skull. Death was instantaneous. The deceased was discovered dead upon the floor by his young wife. The murder has "The Serpents of the Still."

A Name Used Without Authority.

William A. Wiley yesterday filed a singular affidavit with the Secretary of State. He avers that the articles of incorporation of the Novelty Bicycle and Manufacturing Company, which were filed with his name as one of the incorporators. was a mutilated document. He had affixed a declaration, properly acknowledged, revoking and withdrawing his signature. This was detached from the paper which was filed, without his knowledge or consent, and the purpose of his affidavit is to reaffirm his revocation of the authority to use his name. He says he is in no way interested in the company. The written articles of association bear evidence of the revocation having been detached, but the officials in the Secretary of State's office know nothing as to who detached the state-

A SAFE ROBBED.

Cracksmen Rifle the Strong Box of Francke & Schindler.

Safe-breakers entered the store of Francke & Schindler, yesterday morning, before daylight, and entered the large iron safe. The amount stolen is unknown, owing to the refusal of the firm to make a statement. The detectives are satisfied the work was done by experts. The damage to the safe will amount to several hundred dollars. From other sources it was learned that the amount stolen was $90. Ten revolvers are missing. The cracksmen must have done their work early in the evening, for Merchant policeman Clary noticed that the gas, which had been left burning by the book-keeper when ne left, was not burning at 7 o'clock. As it had happened frequently that the light was not burning, Clary did not send word to the firm. The cracksmen entered by means of a ladder reaching to a window in the third story.

from a two to a three years' course accounts for the small number of graduates.

Edmund Russell Concludes His Propyleum Engagement-Costume Recitals.

Edmund Russell appeared last night in a costume recital at the Propylaum. This is his last appearance at the Propyleum. He will probably disappear now for some time to come. The recital was in three parts. The "White Cowl," a selection from Edwin Arnold's poem, "The Light of Asia," and "Pierrot" were, respectively, presented. There was a sad hitch in the scenery for the "White Cowl." The stage was supposed to represent an interior view of a monastery in Kentucky, but unless Mr. Russell has revolutionized the decorative art in Kentucky monasteries recently, there was a trifle too many wolf skins and general upholstery on the stage. "The White Cowl" is the name of a story that was written by James Lane Allen, of Lexington, Ky., and is beautiful as a magazine article. It represents a monk who falls in love with a woman, and rejects his vows and his priesthood for her sake. The monk then marries the woman and she dies. Some time after this he goes back to the monastery, and applies for a position as a monk again, but is refused. The story ends with his death on his cowl. In this selection Mr. Russell had a great opportunity for displaying his art as a reader, but did not seem to take advantage of it. He was dressed in the habit of a priest, which, as Bill Nye would say, "was the worst habit he had." Mr. Russell frequently sighed, and after every other period read low with a wistful, far away modulation of his voice that sounded like the whispers of winds in a "jimson" patch.

"The White Cowl," as read by Mr. Russell, was an agony to the auditors prolonged. If it had been read without any costume at all it could have been little worse. Mr. Allen, the author of the story, will be with the Contemporary Club next month. He will doubtless a preciate what he missed better than anybody can tell. "The Light of Asia" was not so bad, nor were the lighter pieces read after "Pier-rot." In some ways the effect of Mr. Rus-sell's lectures and recitations may be of value to some people, but in all others they are certainly to society what leavening gas is to canned fruit—too much of it will burst in his costume recitations are all right, and might have cost a greal deal of money.

A Brakeman Killed.

John McKee, who was a brakeman on the Pennsylvania road, was killed yesterday by falling under a train of freight cars, between Dillon and Pine streets. He lost his balance and tumbled from the top of a car under the wheels, which passed over his thigh. His home was in Bellefontaine, O. He was a Freemason. Powers & Blackwell's ambulance removed him to Kregelo & Whitsett's morgue.
